INTRODUCTORY CHAPTER.

I.—The History of the MSS.

Of the two MSS, now presented to the public, the one in its entirety, the other partly by inclusion and partly as a supplement, the history of the Register Note-Book is comparatively simple; but that of the Cwtta Cyfarwydd is involved in obscurity; whilst that of the transcript, made from it for the purposes of this book, forms a singular chapter of accidents.

The Register Note-Book is the property of the Rev. Richard Register Henry Howard, M.A., of Wigfair, near St. Asaph, to whom it has descended, by inheritance, from John Lloyd, Esq. of Wigfair, a man of cultivated tastes, and an eminent patron of arts and literature, a Fellow of the Royal, the Antiquarian, and the Linnean Societies, and Member of Parliament for the county of Flint. Mr. Lloyd's magnificent collection of books, MSS., prints, philosophical instruments, etc., fills a catalogue¹ of 128 octavo pages, and was sold at Wigfair on January 15, 1816, and the twelve following days. How, or when, it came into his hands is not known; whether by inheritance or by purchase. But it was most fit that a MS. which contained so much information about his ancestors and their connections some two hundred years before, should find its home in the library of the most eminent of It is written on paper, $6\frac{1}{4}$ inches by their descendants. 4 inches, and contains 518 pages; in some parts faded and slightly torn; but it is complete, with the exception of the

Cwtta Cyfarwydd

The MS. of the Cwtta Cyfarwydd was sent with others to a sale at Bronyrhwylva, near St. Asaph, in August 1875; and was there purchased for Mr. Edward Breese, F.S.A., of Portmadoc. But of its previous history, notwithstanding many inquiries, I have entirely failed to obtain any information. The entry in Mr. Dew's catalogue of the sale is as follows:—

"Lot 114.—A MS., though very imperfect, contains some curious documents during the affairs of the Commonwealth; 'Names of Kings of the Isle of Britain,¹ from the Destruction of Troy to the end of the Princes of Wales'; and the 'Genealogies of British Saints'; 'Mabinogion,² or Juvenile Tales'; 'Selyf and Marchog'; 'Peredur ap Efrog'; 'Iarll'; 'Bown o' Hampton'; 'Sir Bevis'; 'A Chronicle written by the famous Clark, Peter Roberts, called Cwtta Cyfarwydd, Anno Domini, 1607 to 1664'; 'Welsh Astronomy', 1610, copied by John Jones, Esq., from a MS. of Richard ap Sion, Llanganhafal, Dyffryn Clwyd (bound in vellum); 'Trefydd Marchnad Cymru', Allan o Lyfr Llelo Gwtta', 1563, copied by John Jones, Esq., Gellilyfdy (bound in vellum); 'Welsh Arithmetic', by John Jones, Esq., Gellilyfdy (bound in vellum)."

The whole of these were sold together in one lot, and secured for Mr. Breese for £21.

Turning to the Collectanea Llwydii, I find on pp. 107-109 the following entries, which appear to correspond strikingly with the lot sold at Bronyrhwylva, and to connect those MSS. also with the Wigfair collection.

"1977.—MS. IX.—'The Market Towns and Castles in Wales', from the MSS. of Ll. ap Meredith, an. 1563. 'Topography of Wales'. (The execution of this MS. is very excellent in black and red characters.)"

At the end of the Annual Meeting of the Cambrian Archæological Association, held at Carnarvon in 1877, the Rev. E. L. Barnwell, who had already printed in the Archwologia Cambrensis for 1864 (pp. 320-328), under the title of "Bodrhyddan Memoirs", some "Entries copied out of Pierce Roberts, of Bronhwylwa, His Memorandum Book, written from the year 1595 to 1646", spent a week with Mr. Breese at Portmadoc; and it was then agreed between them to publish the Cwtta by subscription; Mr. Breese to act as editor, and Mr. Barnwell to share the pecuniary responsibility. A transcript of the MS. was forthwith made for the press; and Mr. Breese drew up, by way of prefix, a few notes on the orthography, together with a list of the local and personal names frequently occurring in the MS. But his early and lamented death at this juncture involved a twofold difficulty; it deprived the proposed publication of its editor; and it precluded his widow from continuing his pecuniary responsibility in the matter. Mr. Barnwell, however, rather than that it should fall through, then undertook the whole risk; and, at his urgent request, I consented to see it through the press. But now another difficulty occurred. The transcript could nowhere be found; and although Mr. Breese's executors made most diligent search, no note or memorandum of its whereabouts could be discovered. It was only some months afterwards, when the statement in the Report of the Cambrian Meeting at Church Stretton, that "in case of its not being recovered, all subscriptions prepaid would be returned", fell under the notice of Mr. Richards, Great Queen Street, Lincoln's Inn Fields, London, that he wrote to say that the transcript had been left at his office by Mr. Breese, a few days before his death, which occurred in London. When the transcript was at length sent down to me for inspection, some of the earlier pages were missing, and could nowhere be found; and this involved the transcription of those pages from the original MS., which Mrs. Breese very kindly lent for the purpose. A farther comparison of the transcript with the MS., however, revealed so many inaccuracies in the former, arising partly from want of acquaintance on the part of the transcriber with the Welsh names of persons and places, and partly, it may be, from want of care, that it necessitated a minute collation of the transcript with the MS. from the beginning to the end. At last, the corrected transcript was sent to press; but a few months afterwards there was a change of printer, through the retirement of Mr. Richards, and the transfer of his business to Messrs. Whiting and Co. The chapter of accidents, however, was not yet exhausted. A fire occurred in Messrs. Whiting's office, which left its mark and stain, indeed, on the printer's copy; but did not otherwise affect the printed matter. But a second fire, taking place in the same office when the last sheet was in type, destroyed at least one half of the printed matter, and has consequently added not a little to the Editor's labours and to the delay in the issue of the work. May this be the last of its mischances.

II.—THE WRITERS.

Peter Roberts. Although the Cwtta Cyfarwydd, or Chronicle of Peter Roberts, has often been referred to, sometimes quoted, and as in the case of the Bodrhyddan Memoirs, already noticed, made widely known by large and interesting extracts, no account, so far as I have been able to ascertain, has anywhere been published of Peter Roberts himself. Fortunately, however, the Cwtta, in which he has combined, with more general memoranda, an abundance of family notices, supplies ample materials for a tolerably full account of the writer of this highly interesting MS. From this we learn that his father, Robert ap Howell ap Rees ap Dio, was the owner of Bronyrhwylfa, near St. Asaph, where he resided till his death in 1622, and that his mother was Agnes, the great granddaughter of Ieuan Gryffyth of Gwernigron, in the same parish. Peter, or as he writes it indiscriminately, Peeter, and Piers, Roberts was born February 2nd, 1577-8, as we gather from his memorandum of his father's death on the 27th April, 1622, which he thus subscribes "Vera testor; I being then 44 yeres of age since the purificacon; Petrus Roberts no'rius pub'cus"; and from the first line of the verses in which he writes of himself, on the 14th of July 1648:—

"Undecies senos exegi strenuus annos, Iam veniet nullo mors inopina die."

Of the place of his education, he tells us nothing; but there can be little doubt it was the Cathedral Grammar School,—the Schola Libera Asaphensis, which Edward VI's Commissioners in 1548 recommended to be continued at St. Asaph, and which the members of the Chapter taxed themselves to support; to the "power scholers" of which Bishop Goldwell assigned certain fines in 1556; and to which Bishop Hughes in 1597 made a conditional bequest of land and money, and with whose episcopate the first twenty-four years of Peter Roberts' life would be contemporary. Here, whatever criticisms we may be tempted to make on the niceties of his scholarship, we cannot but concede that he imbibed a love of letters, which he retained to his last days. Many instances of this occur in the body of the work; not only in his official records, but still more in those playful essays of his muse, in which, looking back upon his literary work, he apostrophises posterity, and claims their recognition:—2

"Reader, the Author ever tooke care and paynes
In punctuall writings, but in this what gaynes
More than by all the sheepes skinnes he hath spent
And Ludlow sheetes w'ch nowe lye wast and rent.

After life's terme is done, lyeing in grave, Old Peeter's name immortall prayse shall have;"

And in those more touching ones, in which at the age¹ of three score years and six, he appeals to another tribunal:—

"Quæ dixi, scripsi, gessique, negotia, lusus Obruat eterno mors taciturna sinu. Sin quod jure petant homines, respondeat heres Dissipet ut cineres nulla querela meos: Quæque Deo decoctor iniquus debeo, solum Quæso fide jussor sanguine, Christe, tuo."

His pages tell us of another eminent scholar, more widely known, a few years his junior, but one for whom he appears to have entertained a great affection, and to have shared with him a strong antipathy to the Parliamentarians. This was Alexander Griffith, whom we are thus enabled to identify as "Sancti Asaph Alumnus"; and whose return to his native place,2 "Ubi natus et educatus erat scil't S' Asaph", was welcomed by old Peter with more than usual fervour in one of his poetical effusions, "Gratus adest nobis, gaudia magna ferens". Alexander was born in 1600, and was the son of Owen Griffith, one of the Vicars Choral, and afterwards Rector of Llysfaen, 1614-1627. He took his B.A. as a member of Hart Hall, Oxford, in 1618, and in 1631 proceeded to his M.A. At the breaking out of the Rebellion, he was deprived of his benefice, "in remotis partibus South Wallie", and during his deprivation he wrote a number of controversial pamphlets, such as Mercurius Cambro-Britannicus, Strena Vavasoriensis, and others, against the itinerant preachers who had been thrust into the places of the clergy.

There are no records to show the date of Peter Roberts' appointment as a "Notary Public", but he is described as such as early as 1599. And in the Note-Book he is called "Register of St. Asaph"; but he never describes himself as such, nor could he have been "Register", as that office was filled during his time by others, e.g., John Lloyd, 1574-1615, and George Ravenscroft in 1639.

Being already a Notary Public, he was farther admitted a

"Proctor of the Consistory Court", on the last day of June 1624, nine days after the first coming of Bishop Hanmer to St. Asaph, and the day before his primary visitation commenced. He was thus brought into official connection with a wide range of matters and persons, ecclesiastical and civil; and this connection, while it afforded ample opportunities for collecting his memoranda, gave them also a special value.

The first entry quoted in the Register Note-Book dates from the "xiiiith day of December 1595", though for reasons hereafter given, the Cwtta may have begun a little earlier; and this would be when Peter Roberts was just eighteen years of age, and already, it may be assumed, a clerk in the office, if not also a "Notary Public". This officer was anciently a scribe who only took notes or minutes, but, subsequently, confirmed and attested the truth, of deeds or writings, both public and private, in order to render the same authentic. In both these capacities we recognise his work in the Cwtta, or "Chronicle", as he appears to have himself named it, but which might well be rendered his "Minutes" (Minuta, Brevia), or "Notes" of reference (Cyfarwydd, i.e., Index). The death of his mother in 1604, and the second marriage of his father in 1605, were soon followed by his own marriage, in 1606, with Jane, one of the four daughters and co-heiresses of David ap Lewis ap Gronow ap Pellyn of Meriadog, and niece of Ffoulk ap Robert ap Robert ap Howell ap David ap Llewelyn, who built Plas Newydd,2 in 1583, and died in 1607. At this time he appears to have gone to reside with his mother-in-law, Agnes verch Robert, at the "Upper House in Meriadog", where his eldest child, Grace, was born in 1608,3 and to have remained there till 1609, when he removed to "the Lower House in Meriadog", where Lewis ap

² The hall (present kitchen) of this house is a handsome room with moulded beams and wainscoted. Along the top is carved the legend—"Anno Domini, 1583, et aetatis mei Fulconis ap Robert 43. G. H." ³ P. 14.

Gronowe, his wife's grandfather, had formerly lived. This was on the same day that Bishop Parry and his household removed from St. Asaph to live at Disserth. The death of his wife's unmarried sister Jonet, 1607, and the division of her share among the survivors in 1610, added materially to Peter Roberts' income; which was further improved the following year by some land which his father handed over to him in Dolfechlas. The birth of his only son and heir took place in 1613, and being "chrisptened" in the name of William, he took both his father's names for his surname, as William Piers Roberts. The death of his father, Robert ap Howell, occurred in 1622, and the same year his bereaved widow married her third husband. Peter Roberts, having now come into his inheritance, purchased the "Fron Goch", which adjoined his property in Meriadog. In the brief notice appended to the Bodrhyddan Memoirs, it is stated that, on his father's death, he removed to Bronyrhwylfa; but there is nothing in the Cwtta to support this. Indeed, all the evidence tends the other way, as all his own family memoranda continue to be noted under Meriadog, and not under Bronyrhwylfa or Gwerngleveryd, until the year 1635, when his son William, a clerk in the Register's Office, takes his wife Margaret, the second daughter and co-heiress of Thomas Piers Harrie of Penbedow, there to live. William had married in 1633, the year after his mother's death; and in 1634 his own son and heir, Piers Roberts, was born at Bronyrhwylfa. Peter Roberts appears to have contemplated closing his Cwtta with the year 1644, if we may judge from his words on page 219; but happily he continued to make subsequent additions for two more years. Of his death we have no record; no tombstone marks his resting-place; no marble monument tells his virtues; but in grateful acknowledgment of the service he has rendered by his "Chronicle", and mindful of his aspiration, we offer this tribute that—

"lyeing in grave Old Peeter's name immortall prayse may have."

Thomas Rowtands. The identification of the writer of the Register Note-Book is due, I believe, to Mr. W. Wynne Ffoulkes, who was the first to draw attention to a side-note therein to the "Mem: 1 of the christening of Thomas Humphreys, son and heire of Edward Humphreys gent. of Bodelwithan, 2 on St. Andrew's Day 1631", in which is written, "Mr. Tho: Humphreyes yt is now, 1679. Long may he live. Amen say I, Tho: Rowlands, Vic: chor: Asaph." Mr. Rowlands was collated in 1685 to the Vicarage of Llansannan, to which the second comportion of the rectory was at this time united, and was succeeded in his vicarage at St. Asaph by William Price. His name occurs as Vicar of Llansannan, in the Visitation Book of 1694, but not in that of 1697; and as Thomas Williams appears as vicar in 1696, we may believe that Vicar Rowlands died in that year; but as the Registers of Llansannan do not reach back beyond the year A.D. 1727, nothing more is known of him.

III.—A COMPARISON OF THE MSS.

A careful collation of the two MSS. has brought to light many points of difference, which serve to show their relation to each other and their special purpose and value.

Peter Roberts, in the Cwtta, embraces a wide range of subjects; noting down not only what came under his official Matter. cognizance as "Notary Public" and as "Proctor", but also much that came to his knowledge by report. Thus we have him recording a number of events, illustrative of the civil and ecclesiastical state of St. Asaph at the time; jotting down such other "memoranda" as tell us of neighbouring parishes and families in Flintshire, Denbighshire, and even further off; noting the erection of houses and bridges, and the fury of storms and floods; relating incidents of the Plague and of the Civil Wars, and marking the death and burial of bishops, judges, poets, and soldiers of his time. Thomas Rowlands, on the other hand, limits himself entirely to the parish of St. Asaph, and there only records the Marriages, Christenings, and Burials of Parishioners: the only exception, I believe, being the notice of the erection of a bridge over the Elwey, when narrating the funeral of the widow of its builder. Even so, however, in so far as the memoranda are concurrent, there is not an item to be found in the Note-Book, which does not occur in the same words in the Cwtta. The Note-Book is distinctly an ecclesiastical record relating to the parish of St. Asaph, and its special value consists in the information it supplies for the years that are wanting in the Cwtta.

(2) Method.

There is a difference also in the arrangement of the matter in the two MSS. The Cwtta puts down each item, of whatever kind, in the order of time in which it occurred, or at least, came to the writer's knowledge. The Note-Book, on the other hand, keeps the Marriages, Christenings, and Burials separate, and completes each series by itself. The side-notes, to indicate the locality and date of the memorandum (there are none to indicate the matter, which is already distinguished by the arrangement), are, in the Note-Book, placed uniformly throughout on the left-hand side of the page; and so also in the Cwtta, with the addition of the matter down to "the last day of July 1610"; but from that date the locality and the year are continued on the left, while the subject-matter, e.g., "xptening, buriall, hailes", is placed on the right-hand in the MS., though I have thought it unnecessary to adopt that alteration in the press, and sometimes completes the sentence. An Index of the Townships of St. Asaph, noted in these margins, is added in the Note-Book, but is wanting in the Cwtta.

(3) Style.

The style of the Cwtta is less uniform than that of the Note-Book, which appears to have been written out straight-a-head; whilst the former shows considerable variations and is more archaic in character. It employs abbreviations, where the Note-Book is written in full; and it uses the older form of names, such as "Ieu'n", where the other invariably writes "Evan". The Cwtta also begins its proper names with small letters, a peculiarity I have thought it best to lay aside in the printing, for the better recognition of the names by those who may wish to trace out relationships and family connections. The Note-Book, however, almost invariably uses capitals, just as it adopts the Arabic numerals, where the other as frequently uses the Roman.

Peter Roberts, when making entries relating to himself or (4) his family—and such entries are very numerous—writes in Internal evidence. the first person, e.g. (p. 3), "whose godfather I am"; (p. 32), "meself being his godfather"; (p. 70) "my fourth daughter . . . my wief . . . my house"; but in the corresponding memoranda in the Register Note-Book, they are all put in the third person, e.g., "whose godfather Peter Rob'ts the Notary was"; "the 4th daughter of Piers Roberts, Public Notary . . . at his house in Meriadog"; and so on throughout. In the same way, the attestation, "per me Peeter Roberts", so frequent in the one, is omitted in the other; and the "vera testor" of the Cwtta, becomes "vera testatur" in the Note-Book. One side-note has already been noticed as having led to the identification of Tho: Rowlands as the writer of the Note-Book. There is one other (and these are the only two throughout) which shows that he did not write down at first hand and from personal knowledge. Having on p. 72 entered the mem. of the christening and burial of Anne the daughter of Edw. ap Richard Williams, in the identical words of the Cwtta (p. 15), save only that the "I" of the latter becomes "Piers Robt's, P. Notary", he enters the burial again in its proper place on p. 228. Then he scratches it all out, but afterwards finds that it was right; and so he inserts this note: "I did amisse to crosse the collaterall writing for it is true: it seems there were 2 Annes da: to E: ap R: W: Peter Roberts, P. Notary was the godfather and Mrs. Bancks and Anne Powell godmothers to this eldest Anne."

The MSS., as we now have them, begin at different (5) dates. The Register Note-Book commences with a memo-Period randum of Dec. 14th, 1595, whereas the first mem. in the Cwtta is dated August 15th, 1607; but the pagination of the MS. shows that six pages are here lost. These would probably make the beginning of the two coincide. Indeed, this is tolerably certain from the notice (on p. 193) of the marriage of "my cosin Margaret Powell" in 1596, "ut in prima pagina" (the Note-Book has "secunda") "h'mod' libri chartacei patet"; as allowing for the difference of size in the pages of the respective MSS..

and for the much greater compactness of Peter Roberts' handwriting, the first page of the Cwtta would include a good deal more than the first entry on the second page of the Note-Book. And in this connection it is well to notice that the first memorandum in Thomas Rowlands' MS. is that of the marriage of a sister of Peter Roberts.

Bodrhyddan Memoirs.

But there is another version, which may seem at first sight to claim a priority to both the above, that of the "Bodrhyddan Memoirs—Entries copied out of Pierce Roberts of Bronhwylwa, his Memorandum Book, written from the year 1595-1546" (sic); for such is the title given in the Archæologia Cambrensis, third series, vol. x, 1864. To some seven or eight pages of these Entries, Mr. Barnwell adds a few words of explanation, in which he states that "the original Register of Pierce Roberts has vanished; but, fortunately, Miss Lloyd of Tynyrhyl had previously made a transcript of it, from which the above is extracted. It was given by the late Lord Mostyn to Lloyd, the author of Beaumaris Bay, and subsequently bequeathed to Miss Lloyd, together with a large number of MSS.; but which, from the ignorance or neglect of the executor, never reached that lady." Now the first of these entries is as follows: "1595. Roberti Griffith gen. de Pengwerne, defunct. Quarto die Februarii." And this appears to give us a memorandum not included in either of the others; but, turning to p. 178 of the Civita, we see at once that it is one of those back references occasionally found in the Cwtta, transposed and misunderstood by the transcriber, and that it relates to the death, not of Robert Griffith, but of his wife Alicia. This, therefore, makes us rather critical in the case of the other entries; and although the orthography of the Memoirs is more consistently Archaic, and there are occasional additions (as of places where people dwelt), still there are so many manifest errors, either of the transcriber or the transcript copied by her, that I hesitate, in the absence of the copy and transcript, to decide whether it is due to accurate copying or inaccurate interpolation. It is noteworthy, however, that among all the extracts given, there is not one of that large class that relates to Peter Roberts' own family or to any of the Lloyds of Wickwer, or those other prominent families that figure so often in Peter Roberts' Cwtta; but only to those of the Mostyns and the Conways, with their connections, which form the bulk of the Memoirs, and explain the selection as well as account for the title. The entries, as printed, are, so far, but a selection from the Cwtta, to illustrate the family history of those two houses, and might equally well be called the Mostyn Memoirs. And this is, perhaps, the true explanation of their being transcribed by Miss Angharad Llwyd from a Mostyn MS.

IV.—CHARACTERISTICS OF THE "CWTTA".

Having shown, in the previous Section, the relative value and importance of the two MSS., it will be well now to notice more in detail some of the prominent features or characteristics, already indicated, of the principal one.

And in doing so, it will be desirable to exhibit, at the Authority. very outset, the authority on which it rests. For the question has more than once been asked: What is the value, apart from its merely antiquarian interest, of the Cwtta, as a record of facts? What is its worth as evidence? The answer to this must be that the authority varies according to the sources of the information from which the memoranda are derived. Some are of the highest legal value, inasmuch as they bear an official attestation. "Ita testor, P. R." . . . "Vera testor Pe: Robertes, Notarius publicus, testis occulatus." Others, of hardly less authority, assert his personal knowledge from actual presence on the occasion, "Pe: Robts", "By me Pee: Robertes." Others, again, he learnt from the lips of those directly concerned, as "ex ore conjugatorum". Some, however, he had heard "by report", "by credible report", "by report of credible witnesses", by report which he "believes to be true." And as he rarely subscribes his name, after 1620, to any but distinctly legal documents, yet notes any variation between his own dates and those of the Parish Register ("in Reg'ro"), and occasionally inserts one from that source into his own, noting the same with an "Ex Reg'ro";

we may conclude that his entries deserve, upon the whole, the highest credit as legal evidence, having been supplied by an official under whose cognizance such evidence came, and who moreover shows that he took reasonable pains to verify his statements.

Orthography.

As might be expected in a period when the spelling of English words had not yet settled into a stereotyped form, and there was a sort of quaint conceit in rendering the same name in a great variety of ways; when Sir Walter Raleigh wrote his own name in some fourteen different forms, and the old name of Newmarket (Flintshire) was spelt in at least twelve different ways, we do not wonder at finding our Chronicler writing his Christian name as Peter—Peters— Piers—Pirs, and his surname as Roberts and Robertes. In the same way we have age and aige; son, sonn, and sonne; doughter and daughter: Sanct and Saint; wief, wieff, and wife; gossips and goships; Xpten and Chresten; daie and day. So also marry is frequently spelled with one r, and burial mostly with two ls. In the form "Bushop", I think we may further recognise the letter which a Welshman would naturally employ to render the pronunciation of the word. There is also this peculiarity in his rendering of the ordinal numbers; that the termination "th" has to do duty not only for its own numerals, but also for all the others, as 2th, 3th, 21th.

Nomenclature. Christian Names.—Among old Welsh names at that time in common use, but since then all but forgotten, we have the following:

Masculine.—Dio, Ednyved (Nevett), Grigor, Gronow, Llowarch, Moyndeg, Pellyn (ap Heilyn), Ririd.

Female.—Angharad, Dowlce, Gwenhwyfar, Mallt (Matilda), Marcely, Morvydd.

Down to this period, the rule had been to use the Christian names, with the addition of "ap" or "ab" (an abbreviation of "map", "mab", i.e. "the son") to denote the relation of sonship, repeated as often as it might be required to indicate the degrees of ascent; and with the addition of "vz", or "ach", in the Cwtta, "uch" in the Note Book (both abbreviations of "verch", a daughter) to fill the like office on the female side. Thus "Robert ap Howell ap Rees ap Dio" represents four generations in our Author's paternal pedigree; whilst "Agnes v3 John ap Robert ap Ieuan Griffith," his mother's name, traces him back on her side for five generations.

But we have now reached the turning point at which Surnames. another system comes in, by dropping the "ap" or "ab", and converting the father's Christian name into a genitive form; and then fixing it as a permanent surname. Thus "Robert ap Howell's son", is no longer Peter ap Robert; but Peter Robert's, i.e., Peter Roberts; whilst his son, again, becomes not William Peters, but William Peter Roberts. Hence the multiplicity of Hebrew and Christian names, and the great prevalence of Joneses, Thomases, Robertses, etc.; and if the modern system has become less prolix and wearisome than the successive "aps", it must also be conceded that it has become much less significant and definite. Happily the wife has not yet dropped her maiden name for her husband's; and "Jane v₃ David Lewis ap Gronowe ap Pellyn", is more easily identified as the wife of Peter Roberts, than would be the name of simply "Jane Roberts".

Among the unusual words employed by Peter Roberts we Peculiar have these: "anynch" and "anenst", answering to the Border words and expressions. tude); "beddered", for bedridden; "burdes", or lumps (of ice); "mislening", meaning "drizzling" showers; "yt snewe" for "snowed"; "ynned", i.e., "stored", of hay, a word found used in the same sense in the almost contemporary Diary and Letters of Philip Henry. The pavement in Rhyllong is "made of newe"; the election at Flint "passed with" Mr. Salusbury, which seems to be a translation of the Welsh form "aeth gyda"; "naturall child", is used in a sense exactly opposite to its modern force, and means the legitimate, not the illegitimate, offspring. His daughter-in-law was "churched or purified".

Ecclesiastical terms, again, are of constant recurrence to Chron-emphasise his chronology; thus we have "All hallowtide", ology. "Corpus Christi Day," "S'Hellarie Day", "S'Leonard's Day", "Lammas Day"; and not only Shrove Tuesday, and Trinity Sunday, but "Shrove Sonday" and "Monday", and "Trinitie Tuesday". The year, too, it must be borne in mind was reckoned at this period from the 25th of March, and not the 1st of January.

Abbreviations. The following forms of contraction are of frequent recurrence throughout, e.g.—

' = er, as div's, p'son, c'ten
con = tion
imp'p'm = inperpetuum md = memorandum
p' = per
P = pro p't = part w'ch = which

5 = ch, e.g., Go5 = Gôch v5 = verch D'd = David Ieu'n = Evan Lle'in = Llewelyn Me'dd = Meredydd Rs = Rees.

V.—Social Customs.

Births.

In commemorating the birth, especially of his own children, Peter Roberts is careful to note the aspect of the constellation under which it occurred, a feature which looks strange to us, but was the common custom of that and the preceding generations, etc., not only in the case of the poor and the illiterate, but also of nobles and statesmen. "The great man", we are told, kept these (astrologers) to "cast the horoscopes of his children, discover the success of his designs, and the public events that were to happen."

Christenings. The christening appears to have taken place, as a rule, very soon after the birth; sometimes on the following day, mostly within three or four days. The record of the names of the gossips, which he gives, often supplies a clue to the family connections, and indicates more clearly the social position in which they moved.

Wed-dings.

Weddings appear to have been celebrated frequently in private houses, as well as at all hours, even to "candle light" in the parish church; and "clandestinely" on many occasions, one favourite place for such marriages being the chapel in Wickwer, at St. Mary's Well, "Capel Ffynnon-Vair." But in one case, at least, it is difficult to imagine why the marriage should have been "clandestine" at all, as "the mariage and m'iage porc'on had been concluded upon Friday before".1 Of these "marriage portions" and "marriage contracts", we have many illustrations. When one couple "were in'ied at Mold and dyned at Chester", we should like to know whether this meant a private or a family dinner, equivalent to the modern "wedding breakfast", of which we have no distinct mention. Another pair, on their return home to Caerwys, receive a hearty welcome from a large party who accompanied them on horseback; but which Peter Roberts records in somewhat doubtful and amusing Latin, "Quam plurimis ei comitantibus et secum equitantibus."

The funerals took place very soon after death, frequently Funerals. the next day; and this was probably owing to the absence of any coffin to enclose the remains, the body being simply placed upon a flat board or stretcher. Occasionally, they took place at night, and in one such instance, it is given as a reason "for that she was a Recusant", but that could hardly have been the sole ground, seeing that some Protestants also were so buried. But the simple burial was followed, after an interval of two or three weeks, by a more public ceremony, "the solempnization" or "commemoration", when in the case of greater people, a "sermon" was preached, and "offerings" made "in remembrance of his death". The place of sepulture was nearly as often in the church as in the churchyard; and it is evident that at that time the body of the church could not have been pewed. In one case a singular device is adopted for overcoming the want of a mortuary. "Md' Thomas ap John Velynyth (who upon Wednesday before was drowned in Elwey), was carried to church and put in his grave, untill the Coroner came thether to view his body."2 Many touching entries occur under this head. At Mold, we are told that "on Shrove Son-day...1628... one W'm Gruffith (being an old man of cviii yeares of age) and Margaret Gruffith his wief being a gentle-woman of the age of ciii yeares and having lived together in lawfull m'riomy for lxxxiiiior yeares) were buried in one grave." At St. Asaph, Mrs. Lewis Lloyd was buried, "having four children born dead unto her." On the 19th of December 1641, "the mother of one Ffo. ap Thomas Lewis of Meriadoc was buried at Llanyvyth", and on "the vith of Februar' following, one Ffoulke ap Thomas Lewis, aiged about 90 yeares was buried"; how old must his mother have been?

Widow-hood.

The sorrows of widowhood, however acute, do not appear to have continued for any lengthened or conventional period. Three, or even two months, was apparently ample time for such grief. In one case we find a widow who lost her husband on a Wednesday, burying him on Thursday, and marrying again on Saturday! At such a rate, no wonder we read of "one Ffoulke ap Rees Lewis, a poore old man late of Meriadog . . . leaving a widowe behinde him . . . who hath bene married to foure husbands before." And we cease to wonder at the oft repeated story of the beautiful Catherine of Berain and her four husbands.

Quarrels.

Unhappily, there are evidences of many grievous, and some fatal, broils, which show a rough and quarrelsome condition of society. At his brother Evan's marriage, he tells us, "my brother John Roberts was sore and greevously hurte and wounded upon the head by D'd Lloid ap Thomas with a long piked staffe." On another occasion, "one Richard Matthewe sonne and heire of John Mathewe of the Greene, gent., was hurt and wounded by Ffoulke Rutter gent. and died thereof upon the morrow after." Another time, "one Hugh Pennant (brother of Mr. Piers Pennant of Bighton esq.) died, being hurt and wounded upon the head by one Piers Hughes upon Monday before." Still worse, "Rowland Evans, cl're one of the ivor vicars chorall of the cathedrall church of St. Assaph was hurt and wounded upon the head in an alehouse in the parish of Llandrillo in Edeirnion¹... whereof he died"; and saddest of all, the execrable and horrible murder in Kilowen, and the suicide in Flint Gaol.²

VI.—MEMORANDA OF GENERAL OR NATIONAL INTEREST.

Although from the nature of this Chronicle, it is not to Creation be expected that many events of national interest will be of Wales. found recorded; still there are several which it may be well to draw attention to. It is generally asserted that the eldest son of the Sovereign is Prince of Wales by virtue of his birth; but it would appear that in case of his death, a brother succeeding to him as heir apparent to the throne, does not thereby become Prince of Wales. For whereas "our most noble Prynce Henry, eldest sonne and heire then app'ant of our Sovereigne Lord King James", died on the 4th of November, 1612 (p. 37), we read that "Upon Monday being the ivth day of November 1616, Prince Charles (who succeeded Prince Henry late eldest son of King James) was created Prynce of Wales" (p. 59). The record of the inquest held upon the Prince's body (p. 38), is curious.

The plague which raged in London in 1625 and carried off The 35,000 persons, is noticed as "great and grievous this somer." Plague. And we are told that in 1647 St. Asaph was ravaged by a great "sicknesse".

Looking back on Peter Roberts' weather notices, one cannot Weather but feel that there must have been a great amelioration of the Notes. climate since the times of which he records.

For instance, in 1611, "Stormy weather from xxiith Feb. Storms. untill August following: no barley sowed in May." And in 1622, "a fell and terrible and fearefull showre of rayne and hailestones with great lightning and thunderbolts without resting cessing or intermission"; and he refers, for comparison, to similar storms in 1583, 1641, and 1648.

Snow and Frost.

Again, we are told that in the latter end of Jan. 1614, "there was great and deepe snowe and frost till the xxvith of February." And in 1626, fourteen continuous days of snow, from January the 4th to the 18th, "at wich daie it began to thawe." And also in 1634, when "for a fortnight before Xptemas last past, there happened great and hard frost until Xptemas and upon Monday the vth of Jan. it began to freeze and snowe again and greate driftes of snowe happened till this day, that it began to thaw" (Feb. xi). Great floods necessarily followed on such occasions, and in 1624 we read of one such, "wich did ov'flowe all the ro' or commons at St. Assaph and took away some part of the bridge at St. Assaph, next the Deane his house, and the bridge of yr Allt Goze and also the chappell bridge, the like water was nev' seene or heard of."

Drought.

On the other hand, in July 1612, "there happened great drought in so much that all or the most p't of the water corne mills (standing on the side of the ryver of Elwey), stood still w'thout grynding for want of water to turne the same." Again, in 1623, he notes "that from Allhallowtide last past, and before thitherto there happened great scarsitie of corne in England, so as there was great dearth and famyne here." And many a "dry somer" is referred to, e.g., in 1597, 1638, 1648, and 1649.

Price of Corn.

The price of corn is given in 1637 and 1638, when a "hoope" ($\frac{1}{3}$ of a quarter) cost respectively 16s. and 17s. 6d., a "hoope" of barley 13s. 4d. and 14s., of rye 15s. and 16s., and beans 14s. and 16s. When we bear in mind the comparative value of money now and then we shall realise more fully old Peeter's pious entreaty, "I pray God (of his infinite goodnes and mercie) to amend and to turne it to cheapness and plentie."

Earth-quakes.

There were earthquakes too which he has taken care to chronicle, viz., "on the 18th of March 1612, one in Fflint and Denbighshire and some p't of Shropshire, but nothing in Ludlow"; and another on the 6th of May 1615, one of great violence, "magnus terræ motus". That so observant a chronicler should note down the comet of 1618 is natural, and we repeat it in his own quaint words. "In November 1618, a blazing starrre in the East was seene in the morning about vi of the clocke w'th her long taile towards the weast."

The transition from natural to civil commotions is short Rebellion and natural, so we will introduce here his memoranda of the Rebellion, both in Ireland and in this country. Of the former he writes that, upon the 20th February 1641, "some xixen shippes loaded w'th soldiers and munic'on for warres were seene sailing anynch Ruthland for Ireland to suppresse the Rebellion of the Ireish na'con w'ch began to rebell and to kill and robbe abouts all S'ts last." Alas! that these our own days should be witnesses of conduct on their part not a whit less reckless and savage.

But England had her troubles at home as well; and of Civil Wars. these we have many interesting memoranda. In 1642 "o'r Sov'eigne Lord King Charles came to Westchester (Chester), where he and his army staide till Tuesday following, and went from thence to Shrewsbury, where he had bin before." "On the xiiith day of July 1643, S'r Thomas Salusbury Barronet and Colonell having departed hence at Worcester, was intombed or buried at Whitchurch neere Denbigh." The same year, about the 17th or 18th of October, Col. Wm. Wynne of Melay "miscarried and died in the warres in a battell or desp'at attempt etc. made at or neere the towne or villadge of Wem in the countie of Salop and was shortly then after buried at Shrewsbury in St. Chad's Church there." The next year, "Upon Sondaie being the xxth daie of October 1644 in the afternoone, the enemies vizt. S'r Thomas Myddleton Kt. his armie took Ruthin and imprisoned such male persons as they tooke hold", etc. On which our author prays, "Dii vortant bene Sed Deus dabit his quoque finem." "Heaven turn it to good. God will put an end even to these." And then he adds, with loyal satisfaction, "The rebells returned backe and fled upon Monday at night, God be thanked." But his joy was not to last for long, for, in 1645, "the rebells vizt. S'r Wm. Brerton and S'r Tho: Myddleton K'ts. etc., with their army", were, to his sorrow, at his own door; and, on "the 24th, 25th, and 26th daies of Aprill", they "have blyndred St. Assaph's p'ish—except Wickwer—and made great spoyles etc. and defiled the churches there. Libera nos D'ne a malo. Amen." In Montgomeryshire, the same year, matters were so unsettled that "Edw. Evans Cl're being admitted Parson of Llanllwchayarne", was allowed to read himself in in the Cathedral at St. Asaph, "for that he could not quietly get or repaire to Llanllwchayarne to read there w'thout danger of lieff and for feare of the enemies, etc., uti aiunt bello sæviente." In the autumn, on the 26th and 27th of September, King Charles, we are told, "was in person at the Castle of Denbigh whereof Mr. Wm. Salusbury of Rûge was Governor under his Maiestie etc. God save o'r Kinge and Realme: God send us peace in Christ Jesus o'r Lord. Amen." In November, another of his loyal officers—Captain John Ffoulks of Vaynoll, "haveing receaved his mortall wound at the siege of West Chester, was buried at that citie"; and "on Tuesday the third day" (of February) "the citie was yeelded up by the Lo' Biron and other . . . officers and their army, etc." And once more, in 1646, we have his last entry on this, to him, most painful subject,—"on Thursday, being the xvith daie of Aprill 1646 the towne and Castle of Denbigh were besieged by the P'liament men, etc." The Castle capitulated in October, but no entry is made of this fact: it was too much for his loyal spirit to record, although his Chronicle is continued for some time more.

Corselets.

Perhaps this is the most suitable place for alluding to the custom of "furnishing a corselett", of which we have two notices in the Chronicle. "The corselet was a species of armour chiefly worn by pikemen, who were thence denominated 'Corselets'; strictly speaking, the word 'corselet' meant only that part which covered the body, but was generally used to express the whole suit, under the term of a 'corselet furnished'. This included the head-piece and gorget, the back and breast, with skirts of iron, called tasses or tassets, covering the thighs." From the entry "1° Aprilis 1619", (p. 76), we learn that Peter Roberts, with others, was appointed to bear a "corselet furnished", but that allowance was made for arms already in hand; and, as "temporal persons were required to find so many corse-lets, according to the annual value of their estates, those having 20li. and under 40li. per annum, one corselet furnished with other arms", we have some clue to the value of our author's estate. A similar appointment was made again in 1635, "at a muster then kept in the churchyard of Llangernew" (p. 159), but the charge was this time more lightly shared, the corselet, reckoned at three pounds, being divided between four, "the pike and sword both allowed, and the rest of that corselet p'mised to be provided for us for o'r money."

VII.—LOCAL MEMORANDA.

It is, however, when we come to the local notices, and especially those relating to St. Asaph itself, that we meet with the most varied and interesting items of information; and these are of much value, as illustrating that period of its history.

Although occasional services, such as christenings, weddings, Cathedral. and burialls, often took place in the cathedral, no separate register was there kept. They were entered in that of the parish church, and many a record in the Cwtta informs us in what part the several dead were laid. Jeffrey Roberts, Vicar Choral (in side-note, Vicar Jeffreys), was buried in the chauncel "right over against his seate on the south side"; Canon George Smyth also in the chauncel, "by the wall on the north side of the same . . . above the Chapter-House door, about the length of two yards"; Vicar Hugh Evans, "anenst his seate on the south side"; Vicar Ireland, "anynch his stalle"; Dean Banckes "on the south side of Dean Evans, his p'decessor's grave in the chauncell"; Humffrey Yo'ng the yong'r, "under the first bell-rope."

The Chapter House, mentioned above, was taken down, and the door built up in 17—; but during the late restoration of the Cathedral, it was again brought to light and reopened. Bishop Owen's energetic influence is marked, not only by the institution of Welsh sermons in the parish church (p. 134), but by many improvements in the Cathedral. First a "pulpit", then "seates benches or formes for schollers and other com'ers thither to heare devine service and sermons". "The great and newe organ was next sett up and plaied upon" (p. 161). After that "great timber trees were carried out of Janian Wood in Beraigne for and towards the making of a newe steeple loft bellpherie" (p. 181), and "the pewes were placed in the south Chappell al's Cappel Vair", the present Consistory Court.

Parish Church.

Burials were very frequent in the parish church, and as in the case of the Cathedral, the exact position is generally indicated, so that we can point out easily in what particular spot were the burial places of the chief families in the parish.

A very interesting memorandum occurs (on page 2) relative to the "repaire of a portion of the churcheyard wall by the inhabitants of the Towneship of Myvot" (in St. George), and to the ecclesiastical connexion between the "towneshipps of Kynmell and Dinorben", in that same parish, and the Prebendary of Vaynoll. Another entry, dated 18th Sept. 1614, attests the existence of an inscription on the east window, which recorded its erection "in anno d'ni millimo quingentesimo vicesimo quarto" (A.D. 1524). Another memorandum (p. 130) relates the re-building of the south porch, which had "fallen downe by reason of the greate mightie and boisterous windes which happened upon the feast day of the Purificacon of our blessed ladie S. Marie the virgine, 1629." Whilst another, in 1638, bears witness to the energy of Bishop Owen-already noticed under the Cathedral—viz., the making and finishing of "the Schoole House room or loft in the lower end of the parish Church". A blank in the Register from March 1622 to 1627, is noted by Peter Roberts, and for this interval the Cwtta is invaluable.

Buildings.

Notices are given of the erection of several of the chief mansions, and of other buildings in the parish. Thus we learn that "the great stone house of Thomas Humfrey Esqr. in Bodelwithan was made of great height," and "the stone house of Thomas Lloyd in Wickwer (that is Cefn) was made and finished in the somer 1632." That "a newe building" on the garden front of the palace was made and erected in 1634 at the cost of Bishop Owen; and that in "1636 the house or halle in Pengwerne called Pengwerne Hall was built by Mr. Robt. Gruffith owner thereof or by his mother, the Ladye Mutton." We further learn from the memoranda, that the bridge at Pontyddol was built by John ap David, gent. "over the ryver called Elwey in His Mat's way leading from Meriadocke towards his house in the parish of Llanyvydd"; that "Pont David Escob upon Clwyd together w'th the two other litle bridges betweene it and the Cathedrall, were made up of newe with stones (where before they were made of timber)," in 1630; and that the pavement between the bridge and Gwaun Kyrchynan was renewed in 1632, while that between the parish church and the Cathedral "was begunne and was finished at the week's end" in June 1638.

On the other hand, we are told that Peter Roberts pulled down his house in Meriadock, called "Y Fron Goch", in 1634; and that a great flood in the Elwey in 1624 had destroyed some part of the bridge of St. Asaph, and the bridge of Yr Allt Goch and also the "Chappel Bridge", near Fynnon Fair, on the old road from Wigfair by Dolbelidr and Galltfaenan, towards Henllan and Denbigh.

Of "Memoranda" relating to the leading families of the Family. neighbourhood, there is a great abundance; and I have therefore added an Index of the names of persons and places, to help those who may seek further information. But the parish of St. Asaph itself, I have felt obliged to omit, on account of the immense number of entries, and the difficulty of distinguishing them with clearness and accuracy. The side-notes, however, as indicating at least the townships, will supply the deficiency for those who may desire to thoroughly explore the ground. A few

^{1 &}quot;But when the same will be finished it is yet uncerteine", is added. Robert Humphreys, who in 1640 married Magdalen Lloid, "came that year first to dwelle at the Hall."

pedigrees, however, of oft-recurring family names, drawn up in the course of editing the work, are appended to this chapter, partly to facilitate identification, and partly to show what may be done in other cases, with so large a supply of material. The pedigrees so formed are those of Peter Roberts's own family; the Lloyds of Cefn (now represented by Williams-Wynn), and of Wigfair (now Howard); the Ffoulkes of Plas Newydd Meriadoc, the Griffiths of Pengwern, and the Prices of Vaynol and Rhiwlas. But beyond these, the Index contains a large number of references to the Burchinshaws of Arlloyd in Llansannan, the Conways of Bodrhyddan and their branches, the Davieses of Gwysaney, the Ffoulkes of Ereiviat and Vaynol, the Hollands of Kinmel, Teyrdan, and Eglwysfach, etc., the Hugheses of Disserth (Llewerllyd, now represented by Mr. H. R. Hughes of Kinmel Park), the Lloyds of Foxhall and Hafodunos, and the Mostyns, Muttons, Myddeltons, Pantons, Salusburys, Williamses and Wynnes, of many lines. The oftquoted triple intermarriage that took place on the same day at Disserth, between the family of the late Bishop Parry and the Mostyns of Rhyd, is recorded on p. 104; the marriage of Sir Peter Mutton with the sister of Bishop Williams, Lord Keeper, on p. 91; the union of the Houses of Rhiwlas and Kinmel on p. 197; and that of Henllan (Garn) and Cwybr on p. 202.

Miscellanea. Henllan Vic. Bancks v. Parry.

Dr. Hanmer, Arch-Bishop.

Leases of Tithes.

Under this head fall a few memoranda, which do not well fit in elsewhere; but which it may be desirable to notice in this introduction. In 1609 Gabriell Parry "tooke possession of and in the Vicaraidge of Henllan", whereupon "a sute grewe betweene Mr. Deane Bancks and Parry;" the Deane claiming it as "united and annexed to the Deanery." In 1623, Dr. Hanmer, being Bishop-Elect of St. Asaph, took possession of the Archdeacon and deaconry, which had been annexed to the Bishopric on the Sunday before he was elected. A lease, in 1613, of the tithes of the Prebend of Vaynol for three lives, shows the formal process followed in such matters, happily now abolished; while another memorandum in 1622 does the same thing in the case of the episcopal tithes of Aberwheeler and Bodfarry for twentyone years. There is also inserted in the Register Note-Book, sub annis 1606, 1607, a quarto leaf containing a memorandum concerning a subsequent lease of the same tithes by Bishop Lloyd in 1686; but as it is a later insertion, unconnected with the scheme of the Note-Book, no further account need be taken of it.

In punctuall writings, but in this what gaynes
More than by all the sheepes skinnes he hath spent
And Ludlow sheetes w'ch nowe lye wast and rent,

After life's terme is done, lyeing in Grave
Old Peeter's name immortall prayse shall have.
And iust it is, he should rewarded be,
With spreading fame unto posteritie,
